response to a request made at headquarters at Fort Leavenworth for reliable news concerning the reported invasion:

FT. Leavenworth Times: When the responsible manager of a reputable journal takes the necessary steps to secure reliable information for the public, the truth is genally published. The utterly false statements given by the press dispatches this morning by the daily papers are largely to the detriment of the state of Kansas. The dispatches of Gov. Martin, embracing the statement made by his adjutant general, and the one from Superintendent Nickerson hit the nail squarely on the head. It will be seen there is not a Cheyenne Indian in Kansas nor has there been one in the state during the time covered by the reported invasion. For unreliable information the reliable man of the associated press leads the band.
